In Japan this insect is kept down by turns, snakes, tonds and bats. It would be impossible to introduce the first two preventitives here because of the mon goose, but the latter could do the work,

In dealing with the general situation here as regards the insect pests, Mr. Leckenby is of the opinion that the mainland ought to be appealed to for help, the extermination of the Japanese beetle and the melon fly being something which would be a protection to the Coast as well as a help to Hawaii.

As a sample of what the various pests are doing here and also as an environment, Mr. Leckenby exhibited some citrus cuttings, three of imported trees and one of a tree grown here from a seed produced here. The for mer cuttings were covered with scale and insects, while the latter was clean Subscribed and sworn to before me this) and hardy. NOTES OF KOOLAU TRIP.

In addition to the members of the committee, there were present yester day to hear Mr. Leckenby, Allan Herbert and George W. McClellan. Mr. Leckenby said:

"We are eagerly trying to walk the path that leads to success and I feel that to stand at the crossroads-one leading to agricultural achievements; the other to failure-as a finger post, is a responsible service.

"There does not appear to be any well beaten path that reaches the desired eminence, so you will kindly excuse the rough work of blazing a trail by one who does his best.

"Water transportation is badly needed for the other side of the Island. Rice is an important industry there for Chinese, who deserve credit for their unique methods, but I deplore their mule-back transportation trains.

"Very refreshing it was to note the few patches of peanuts of excellent quality, that appear to be almost immune from insects, growing well on rather poor soil.
